Hijackers Delay Deadline And Free 22 Passengers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arab guerrillas today extended until 10 p.m. EDT Saturday their deadline for the release of captive Palestinians in exchange for three hijacked airliners and about 280 hostages held in the Jordanian desert.

The guerrillas early today released 21 Arab passengers from a British plane hijacked Wednesday and also freed a British girl engaged to one of the Arab passengers. Jordanian army buses took those freed to the Intercontinental Hotel in Amman.

A guerrilla spokesman said there would be no further extension of the deadline, Beirut

Rail Talks Extended Five Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for the railroad industry and four AFL-CIO unions continued their wage talks after the unions postponed today's nationwide strike deadline for five days at government request.

Assistant Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery urged both sides to use the delay for hard bargaining toward a peaceful settlement that would avert government intervention to halt any crippling strike.

This is in the best interests of the unions, their members, the railroads and the nation as a whole," Usery said of the postponement and the chance to bargain for an agreement covering the 500,000 workers involved.

The strike deadline was moved from 12:01 a.m. today to 12:01 a.m. Monday. Usery said the request for the postponement was made after consultation among federal agencies including the White House.

President Nixon still could delay any strike for 60 days under emergency procedures of the Railway Labor Act, but Usery said the government prefers to see a voluntary settlement.

Usery added, however, the dispute was still a long way from settled and the unions had emphasized they would grant no further strike postponement.

The four unions represent rail clerks, trainmen, track maintenance workers and dining car employees are demanding wage hikes of 40 per cent or more over three years, plus cost-of-living pay and other benefits.

Chief industry negotiator John P. Hiltz said granting such demands would mean bankruptcy for the nation's railroads. He declined to say whether the industry had made a wage counteroffer to the unions.

The hijackers had threatened to blow up at least two of the planes by 10 p.m. EDT Wednesday unless seven of their comrades under arrest in Britain, West Germany and Switzerland were released. West Germany and Switzerland agreed to free the six commandos they are holding, but the British government so far has balked at freeing a woman it holds.

A guerrilla spokesman said the planes and passengers who are not Israelis would be released when the seven Arabs arrive in Amman. He said the Israeli passengers—how many there are is not known—would be traded for Arab guerrillas held in Israel.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, the hijackers are members, said it extended the deadline in response to an appeal from representatives of the International Red Cross.

"The U.S. and England have to understand that their attitude is not in favor of the safety of the passengers of the three aircraft," a communique from the Popular Front said.

It added that the deadline was extended to give more opportunity to the parties involved to the necessary steps.

The U.N. Security Council appealed unanimously

Wednesday night for the release of the passengers and crew of the three captive airliners. It called on all nations to take legal steps to avert future hijackings.

The three planes are a Trans-World Airlines Boeing 707 with 110 persons aboard, a Swissair DC8 with 87 aboard, and a British Overseas Airways Corp. VC10 with about 80 aboard.

The American and Swiss planes were hijacked Sunday, the British plane on Wednesday, Popular Front guerrillas were holding them on an airstrip in northern Jordan.

The TWA and Swissair planes were diverted on flights from European cities to New York, and the commandos took control of the BOAC jetliner over the Persian Gulf after it took off from Bahrain on a flight from Bombay to London.

Red Cross representative Andre Rochat, acting as intermediary between the Palestinian guerrillas and the three countries holding commandos in jail, said the guerrillas have allowed a doctor and a Red Cross team to attend the hostages in the planes parked under the desert sun. One of the commandos at the desert strip made clear that the chief bar to release of the planes was Britain's refusal to free Leila Khaled, the young woman arrested Sunday after she and a companion failed in an attempt to take over an Israeli airliner. Her companion was killed.

"If the British don't release Leila Khaled in two days, we will get two Israeli planes here as well to prove we mean business," the guerrilla told newsmen who traveled to the desert airfield.

He swept the barrel of his machine gun in a wide arc to take in the three planes standing close to each other on the flat desert and said: "There is plenty of room there for more planes."

Dozens of armed guards were standing about the three planes, but none of the hostages was visible. The guerrillas refused to let the newsmen talk to them.

Abu Ezz, a guerrilla leader who stopped the newsmen at the gunpoint, said: "All the passengers are in good health. The food is good."

Chances of Rescue By Force Unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) — High-level Nixon administration officials say privately there is almost no chance the United States will use military force to free airline passengers held hostage by Arab guerrillas.

But with new developments almost hourly, officials say the administration is considering every line of approach—and closing the door on none—in an attempt to gain the release of the more than 300 hostages, including several Americans.

President Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers spent much of their time Wednesday discussing the latest series of hijackings.

Hearnes Presents Welfare Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today offered the recommendations assembled by the National Governor's Conference, and some of his own, on welfare reform to the Senate Finance Committee.

As chairman of the conference, Hearnes was invited to testify on President Nixon's proposals before the committee.

"The governors of the nation," Hearnes said, "faced with runaway costs, day-to-day crises in welfare and administrative quagmire, took a long hard look at the problem through its human resources committee just prior to the meeting of the National Governor's Conference in Colorado Springs in 1969."

The policies adopted, Hearnes said, call for a federally financed system of welfare payments instead of the federal-state program for the aged, blind, disabled and the dependent children, including the general assistance programs now financed by the states.

The governors adopted these policies: Eligibility would be determined by the federal government but administered by the states under federal guidelines.

Realistic income exemptions to provide work incentives, day care for children of working mothers and an expanded federal job training program.

Increase present levels for all payments under the Social Security program's disability insurance with a minimum payment of $100 a month.

Full federal financing of the food stamp program. Hearnes said the governors also endorsed a national health insurance program together with hospital cost controls.

"Medicaid should be 100 per cent federal financed," he said. "We as governors are not too concerned with the question of state vs. federal administration of the welfare system, but we are positive in the belief that there should be 100 per cent federal financing of welfare."

"The states and localities face a continuing and growing fiscal crisis, in large part due to welfare costs, for which federal relief must be provided."

Hearnes made his own border and about 70 minutes' flying time from the Jordanian desert where three hijacked jets and the hostages are being held.

The move was described as a precaution in case the hostages can be removed.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler refused to discuss whether the United States is moving other military equipment or troops nearer the Jordanian desert airstrip.

The only U.S. forces in the immediate area are 1,800 Marines with the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean, and a 1,500-man airborne brigade in Germany.

"We're facing a situation brought about by fanatics who have obviously no concern for the welfare of innocent people," State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey told newsmen.

He was employed by the Avon Craft Construction Company, Westwego, La.

Judge Refuses to Dismiss Vote Suits

CARUTHERSVILLE —

Circuit Judge William H. Billings, who was appointed Tuesday by the Missouri Supreme Court to hear the election contest suits in Pemiscot County, overruled motions Wednesday to dismiss the election contest law suits stemming from the Aug. 4 primary.

The motions, filed by attorneys for defendants, who won elections according to initial election reports, were based on contentions there had not been compliance with statutory requirements.

Judge Billings concluded there had been adequate compliance and set the cases down for a hearing Sept. 15.

The judge issued an order impounding ballots and election records at each of the Pemiscot county precincts.

Offices being contested are: County clerk—John M. Alford, plaintiff; B. F. "Hot" Rodgers, defendant.

Presiding County Judge—D. J. Meredith Jr., plaintiff; Byars Orton, defendant.

Collector—Roger Medlin, plaintiff; Alonzo Kersey Jr., defendant.

Second District Judge—John Dunavant, plaintiff; M. L. Vlar, defendant.

Treasurer—Felix Kyle, plaintiff; Lewis Hester, defendant.

The suits were filed after the Holland precinct reported election results more than 20 hours after polling places closed.

Bid to Block Pornography Report Afoot

WASHINGTON (AP) —

President Nixon's sole appointee to the Commission on Pornography has launched a court battle to knock out its recommendation for repeal of all U.S. pornography laws for adults.

The commissioner, Charles H. Keating Jr., is also suing for a court order to block publication of the 10,000-word commission report until he and other dissenters have time to file minority reports.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch Wednesday issued a 10-day restraining order against publication of the report until Sept. 18 when Keating's request for a preliminary injunction against the report will be heard.

Keating, who repeatedly urged President Nixon to disband the commission, charged it's recommending repeal of six federal and 108 state laws against showing and selling pornography to adults in defiance of what he contends was Congress' mandate to find ways to control obscenity.

"The commission, under the guidance of its chairman, its executive director and staff," he charged, "completely ignored this intent of Congress and did produce a document which made a sham of the Congress' national concern involving traffic in obscenity and pornography."

He charged the recommendation to repeal pornography laws is illegal because Congress gave the commission no such power when it created it three years ago.

The White House has disavowed the commission and announced President Nixon would oppose the recommendation.

One of Keating's lawyers said he filed the court action on his own.

Banned Food on Market

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Products containing cyclamates, the artificial sweetener banned by the government as a possible source of cancer, still dot the shelves of the nation's food stores one week after they were supposed to be cleared off.

An Associated Press survey of supermarkets, neighborhood stores and health food stores in eight cities across the country turned up products containing cyclamates in 21 of the 36 stores checked.

Most managers of the stores said the presence of the products, banned as of Sept. 1, was an oversight. Others said they misunderstood the Food and Drug Administration order or were leaving the products on the shelves until the distributor could pick them up.

The cyclamate-bearing products found included canned macaroni with beef in tomato sauce, fruit drink, imitation maple syrup, gelatin, pudding, fruit and nut chocolate bars, jelly, pie filling and canned peaches, apricots, pears and fruit cocktail.

The quantity of such foods in each store ranged from one can of fruit and a small bottle of orange soda in a Boston chain supermarket to an estimated 16 dozen cans of fruit in a downtown Washington chain store.

The survey was taken Tuesday in Boston, New York, Kansas City, Chicago, Phoenix, Los Angeles, Seattle and Washington.

Two large suburban supermarkets, a neighborhood store and a health food store were checked in each city except Washington, where eight stores were surveyed.

Government and industry officials, who were interviewed the same day as the survey but before the results were tabulated, expressed satisfaction that the withdrawal was orderly and effective.

"Our information is the industry is taking it off the market," said Sam D. Fine, FDA associate commissioner for compliance. "This is based on the complaints we're getting from diabetics who say they can't get their diet foods."

Fine said FDA inspectors had made no field checks a week after the cyclamate ban took effect. He said a check would probably be made later, although FDA officials stressed they are relying on the voluntary compliance of the food industry for withdrawal.

The biggest food chains—A&P and Safeway—said they received no formal notification of the ban from FDA but had told their division heads to see the foods were cleared.

An A&P spokesman described the withdrawal as apparently orderly, and a Safeway spokesman said "As far as we know our stores are 100 per cent clean of cyclamates as of Sept. 1."

Mrs. Betty Tanner, manager of Cato's, said that she thought the downtown area would have more business if it was taken out.

"People actually run out of the store because they are afraid competitors are going to get a parking center they will have to take the ticket," she said. "An additional parking lot would help or even if we had meters that allowed a longer parking time."

Betty Nail of 222 Hardin said: "I very seldom come to downtown because you have to run out and put money in the meter all the time, I just go to the shopping center instead."

One man even said he hoped a tornado came along and blew me away.

There is one man in town who knows more about me than anyone else. He visits me daily and plays doctor for me when I'm feeling ill. He is Johnnie Taylor, 27-year veteran of the police department.

"I've been patrolling the meters for four or five years," Taylor said. "I walk about 12 miles each day giving 25 to 30 tickets and about the same number of courtesy cards."

"Center street is the worst problem in the downtown area, because on bad days telephone operators and others that work downtown, park illegally and I just keep giving them tickets."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

TREAT THE CAUSES, NOT THE SYMPTOMS

Parents, once confident of "knowing their sons and daughters well," now steal worried glances toward their children, checking for dilated pupils, sudden changes in mood or appetite, or the scars of a hypodermic needle—all signs of drug abuse. Business executives, no longer confronted with just the occasional office alcoholic, now must cope with the office "junkie" who supplies his fellow employees with drugs during coffee breaks. Quiet, rural communities are shocked to discover that the drug threat is no longer confined to big cities.

Notwithstanding vastly increased federal, state and local efforts, drug abuse throughout the nation continues to skyrocket. It is abundantly clear that more laws, larger police forces and stricter enforcement policies have failed to stem the spreading epidemic of drug abuse. Concerned leaders are now stopping to ask: why? Why do some people begin misusing drugs in the first place?

Many theories have been offered; for example, "the coaxings of a drug-using peer group"; favorable endorsements given to drugs in underground newspapers or in the lyrics of acid rock music; movies which glorify illegal drug use; the desire to escape from every-day living pressures. But the guesses have only served to confirm that no one really knows. There is, in fact, an appalling lack of hard knowledge as to why people begin misusing drugs. And as the confused debate goes on, more youth every day begin injecting into their veins substances ranging from meat tenderizer to uncut heroin.

It is altogether encouraging to note that there is now a bill pending before Congress - called the Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act - that provides for a study to be conducted by a specially appointed Presidential Commission to investigate the causes - not the symptoms - of drug abuse. The idea is to discover and strike at the source of drug addiction.

It is safe to predict that until an authoritative and comprehensive study is undertaken to detect the root causes of drug abuse, our attempts to curb the problem will run about the way it has in the past - the blind leading the blind. If future programs intended to combat drug abuse are to have any chance of success, they must begin from a solid base of factual knowledge on the subject. Let us hope that Congress takes this important step in the right direction.

IS PORNOGRAPHY FIGHT LOST CAUSE?

The Federal Commission on Obscenity and Pornography, authorized by Congress in 1967 and appointed by President Johnson in 1968, will shortly make its official report.

But there have been so many leaks, intentional or otherwise, about what the committee has been doing over the past two years with its $2 million appropriation, what it has discovered and what it will recommend about the problem of pornography that the report may be anticlimactic.

Then again it may spark the biggest controversy since the Supreme Court gave its imprimatur to Lady Chatterley's Lover a few years ago, a book which by today's fast-changing standards seems only slightly racier than the Bobsey Twins on the Farm.

As far back as last March, the only Nixon appointee to the commission, lawyer Charles H. Keating Jr., founder of the Los Angeles-based Citizens for Decent Literature, warned the President that unless he fired 12 of the 18 members of the commission, "your administration will be tarred with the failure of a presidential commission which you did not appoint and over which you have absolutely no control."

The President's press secretary has since taken pains to make it clear that the commission was established by Nixon's predecessor.

By failure, Keating means the failure of the commission to come up with the conclusion which he, and perhaps a majority of Americans, intended it should - that pornography is an unmitigated social evil and a menace that should be stamped out.

The commission has, in fact, reached exactly the opposite conclusion, as testified to by a tentative draft statement that has been circulating around Washington like a straw in the wind:

"The existing empirical scientific evidence indicates that exposure to explicit sexual material is not a cause of anti-social behavior in either youth or adults."

The draft actually goes on to recommend the repealing of all laws against pornography for consenting adults - laws which court decisions have weakened to the vanishing point but which many people feel must remain on the books.

The commission's finding, if that is what it is, will have been based on the most thorough investigation of pornography ever made in this country or any other.

Involved interviews with thousands of individuals around the nation, studies of sex offenders in prisons and hospitals, examination of the characteristics of habitual buyers of erotica, studies of the relationship between availability of pornography and sex crimes, studies of the effects of viewing or reading pornography on individuals, polling the opinions of all state attorneys general and local prosecution and police officials, and much more.

The conclusion, whether one likes it or not, will be as solidly grounded on fact as it is possible to get in this subject.

And that conclusion, and accompanying recommendation, after causing a brief uproar, will likely be entirely ignored: If letters to congressmen are any guide, Americans are not prepared to follow the example of Denmark, which abolished all restrictions on pornography for those over 16.

"There is no single subject on which we have consistently received more mail," says Rep. Durward Hall, R-Mo., to the seconding of his colleagues. The mail is overwhelmingly anti.

So the laws will remain - may even be beefed up - and the problem will continue. So, too, will the still-unanswered question: Just what is it that the law should ban?

A significant revolution in attitudes toward sex has taken place in this country, and is taking place. Literature which even the most dedicated smut hunter considers fairly mild today would have outraged his parents. Today's miniskirts would have led to wholesale arrests not too many years ago.

SEA FARMING

Sometime ago, the chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission commented that the nation is "only beginning" to recognize the implications of nuclear energy and its promise of abundance. Of course, heat, light and power from the atom are the primary functions of nuclear energy, but its by-products may also contribute to the abundance of which the Atomic Energy Commission official speaks.

A publication of the State of Oregon Economic Development Division featured a story describing how nuclear power plants could start a sea farming boom on the Oregon coast. It says, "Coastal nuclear power plants... could trigger an era of intensive sea farming called aquiculture." The publication described how large volumes of heated sea water discharge could be used to raise high value fish and shellfish in the opinion of the head of the Oregon State University Pacific Fisheries Laboratory. For example, heated discharge from nuclear plants might be ideal for growing salmon, oysters and other shellfish. The university official, according to the story, believes there might be opportunity when a nuclear plant is built to set up a "factory type" aquiculture. Wastes from salmon would provide nutrients for plant life. Oysters, in turn, would feed upon the plant life.

Thus, intensive aquiculture may become a by-product of nuclear energy reducing the market price of fish and shellfish to comparable low-priced meats. Here is but one example of how technology, coupled with the development of nuclear energy, can provide the keys to meeting environmental and population needs of the future.

Lo, the nonvanishing Indian: The Navajo, largest of the American Indian nations, has jumped in population from an estimated 15,000 in 1868 to 125,000 today. But 24 per cent of 3,500 reservation families studied had no visible means of support and the mean income for a family of six was $46 a week. That's about as mean as you can get.

Two of history's famous gluttons were King Louis XIV of France and Diamond Jim Brady, the American bon vivant. For dinner the French monarch often had three soups, five entrees, three fowl, two fish and several vegetable dishes - then topped it all off with some hard-boiled eggs. As for Diamond Jim, at his death he had a stomach six times the size of that of a normal man.

On those two days, 2,000 family doctors will take an examination at 36 academic sites in 23 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico which, if passed, will qualify them as diplomates in medicine's newest - yet oldest - specialty - family practice.

Before World War II, most doctors were family practitioners or general practitioners or "generalists." But over the ensuing decades there has been so much emphasis on specialization that less than 15 per cent of medical school graduates enter family or general practice today.

The pendulum is swinging back. Only last year the American Medical Association and the Advisory Board for Medical Specialties approved the new, broad-scale specialty of family practice.

The hope is that recognition of family practice as a specialty will encourage more young doctors to take up primary health care as a career and that with more "doctors of first resort" available to provide personal, comprehensive and continuing care to families, access to the nation's complex medical system will become easier and less expensive for all citizens.

Quotable Notables: "He who slings mud generally loses ground." - Adlai Stevenson.

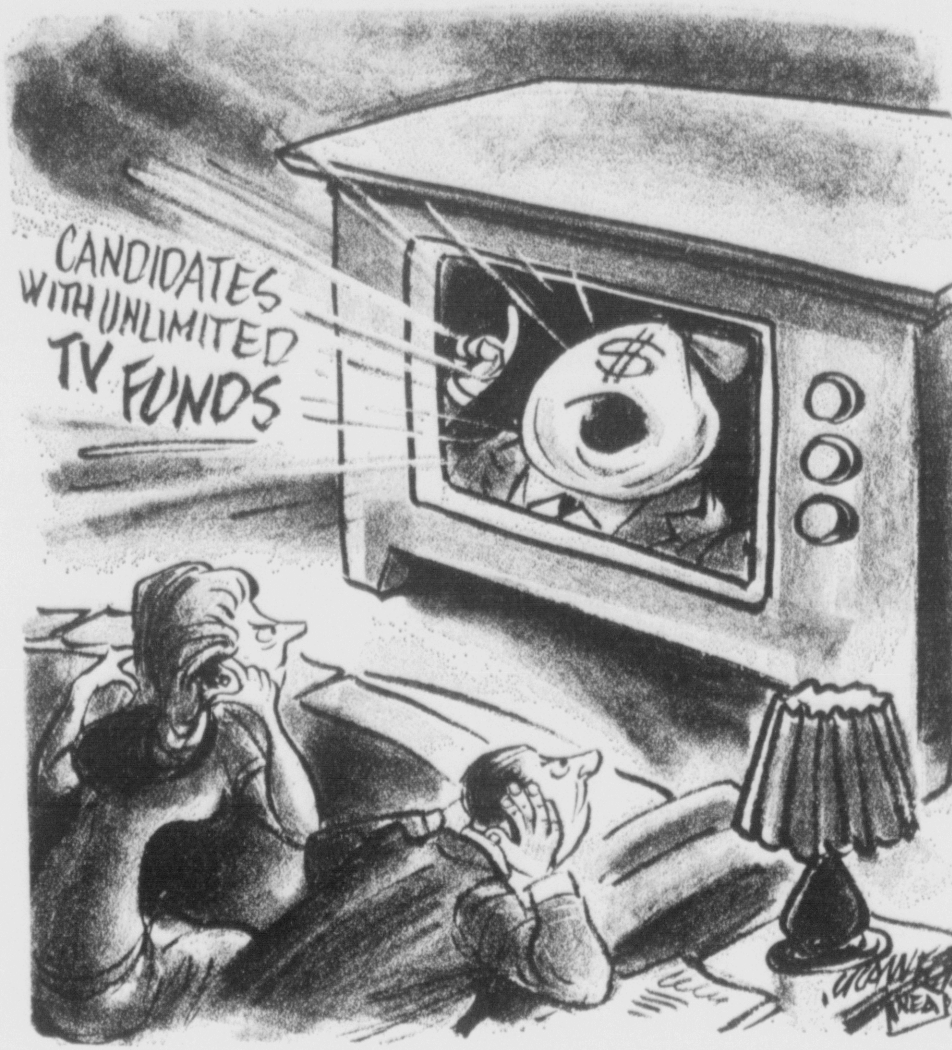

Facts that leave you breathless: During the building of the great Egyptian pyramids 9 tons of gold were spent to buy onions for the workers.

Larger animals generally tend to live longer than smaller animals, but size is in itself not a direct criterion of longevity. The average mouse lasts only three years, but a queen ant may live to 19. Whales and elephants are ready for the final gasp at 50, man - ready or not - wears out about 70, only five years longer than the 65-year life span of the halibut.

Quickie information: Birds have a poorly developed sense of smell. A cricket only an inch long can be heard for almost a mile. Vichyssoise isn't a French but an American soup. We now have a month. Tableware was so scarce in Europe, 1,000 years ago that guests were expected to bring their own spoons and daggers to a banquet.

It was Nicholas Chamfort who observed, "There are two things we must resign ourselves to on pain of finding life unbearable: the ravages of time and human injustice."

Money Talks

The 2,000 doctors taking this first ever examination are all veteran physicians who have been in practice at least six years or medical school teachers for the same length of time or who hold a residency in a special field but still choose to enter family practice. They are laying their professional reputations on the line before the eyes of their colleagues.

Most of them are members of the American Academy of General Practice, the only medical organization that requires its members to take postgraduate study - at least 150 hours of approved study during the three-year membership tenure. Likewise, the specialty of family practice will be the only specialty requiring its diplomates to be recertified periodically.

Maybe some of them will even make house calls.

SAYS REVE NUE SHARING PLANS REQUIRE STUDY

Proposals for a new form of Federal government aid payments to state-local governments have drawn "impressive" support both in and out of Congress, according to Tax Foundation, Inc.'s new Government Finance Brief, Federal Revenue Sharing: A New Appraisal.

While the momentum for revenue sharing has recently gathered force, in the opinion of the GFB's author, Professor C. Lowell Harris, "doubts, both to command attention. Further discussion of [revenue sharing proposals] is clearly needed," says Prof. Harris, the Foundation's Economic Consultant and Columbia University professor of economics.

Most of the proposals have two major characteristics, it is pointed out: (1) a part of Federal personal income tax receipts or base would be turned over to the states; (2) these funds would reach the recipients in the form of general purpose (or unconditional) grants. They would not be earmarked and pent, as now, under Federal direction. The study notes these major arguments for sharing (among others): (1) future Federal revenue will grow faster than spending; (2) need for state-local funds will rise more rapidly than revenue from existing sources; (3) "formidable" obstacles stand in the way of state-local tax hikes; and (4) the present system of Federal categorical grants has its deficiencies.

The study says that the rise in Federal revenues and steeply graduated rates can outpace the rise in Federal spending under present programs. This "surplus" could be used in several alternative ways - Federal tax reduction, new programs, or more aid to state-local governments.

Can Support "Normal" Growth State-local governments' present revenue sources, however, can support more than "normal" growth - without tax increases - and also provide for substantial improvements. Present state-local tax levies, it is noted, do not exhaust their potentialities.

However, the question still remains: have the states and localities gotten near the saturation point in using "traditional" tax sources? Will the negative effects of higher taxes be greater than the benefits realized from spending? "Facts and conclusions on this," says the GFB, "are likely to be open to debate rather than clear in one direction or another."

Concludes the study: "The discussions of revenue sharing raise many issues; various theories receive attention... there is great danger that varied pressures will lead not only to more compromising than is consistent with optimum results, but also to failure to take adequate account of new developments... Momentum for revenue sharing has gathered force; nevertheless, doubts, both political and economic, remain to command attention. Further discussion is clearly needed."

We can't make ourselves happy by making others unhappy.

The head of a successful company said: "I have been in business eight years, and have gone ahead as fast as I could reasonably expect. But I fear I am becoming complacent. So on Saturday I expect to fire myself and everyone who works for me. On Monday I shall rehire the whole lot, including myself, but we shall be new employees, subject to close scrutiny. We must make good all over again, as though we were launching a new enterprise."

The idea is sensible. Periodically, an executive should try to see his business through fresh eyes. He should say "Why?" a dozen times a day for sixty days. Why this letterhead? Why this office arrangement? Why this sales practice? Why this man in that job? Why this design? Why this division of territory? Why this quota? Why this volume of sales? Why this profit?

A new man would ask those questions. A new man would set a higher goal. A new man would look forward, not backward. A new man would judge himself by the future, not by the past.

That's the way to keep a business young, and that's the way to keep ourselves young.

H.L. Hunt Says

REPLACING THE PANAMA CANAL? Negotiations are currently underway between the United States and the Republic of Panama regarding the construction of a new Atlantic-Pacific sea level canal to replace the present Panama Canal. Yet experts agree that no new canal is needed. The primary effect of the proposed new treaties then would be to significantly reduce U.S. control over the canal.

The proposed treaties restrict the capability of the United States to defend the present canal or any new canal in the event of aggression and limit U.S. bases to a smaller area. In view of the instability in Central American countries, including Panama, the continuing Communist subversion throughout all of Latin America, these changes would be extremely foolish.

The treaty negotiations are justified on the grounds that a new, larger canal is needed. Yet as the Chicago Tribune pointed out in a recent editorial, many experts question this need.

Solomon Gady Hollister, dean emeritus of engineering at Cornell University, chaired a board of congressional consultants which studied the problems of the Panama Canal. He has stated flatly that no new canal is needed and that the proposed new treaties would endanger the present canal.

Major General Walter Leber, governor of the Canal Zone and president of the Panama Canal Company, has testified before Congress that improvements currently underway or proposed for the near future would enable the Canal to handle its projected traffic well into the next century.

A new canal would be extremely costly, is not needed, and would be in constant danger of take-over by forces hostile to the United States. Therefore it should not be built. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

TYPHOON SPIRO. Nixon Puts Agnew on the Road To Campaign For Labor Votes WASHINGTON, D.C. - Somewhere in the lobby of the heavily guarded Evergreen Hotel on Sun Moon Lake, Taiwan, a Chinese friend whispered to me that "your honorable vice president is a one-man typhoon." Now that we're both back, the word is that Spiro Agnew will be Mr. Nixon's one-man whirlwind - week after week, state after state, speaking of many things - but especially seeking the labor vote, the working man and woman's vote, hitting a theme which might be called a ballot for the ballot of the "forgotten man."

This will update the "silent majority." Mr. Agnew's first whirl-around will last six days. Then each week right through the campaign he'll barnstorm at least three days each trek into the big industrial states seeking votes wherever they can be rallied to Republican Senatorial candidates - be it in Las Vegas or amid the cooler winds of Connecticut, California, Tennessee, or seething New Jersey.

He hits the road at the urging and direction of Richard Nixon, the political strategist, who as President cannot go for the political jugular as have his Democratic and liberal gadflies over the decades. Spiro Agnew goes with more than the Chief Executive's blessings. The vice president was given his pick of White House men - and he did a fast count of talent and came up with the team of Bryce Harlow, lyrical writer William Safire, tough script and prose man Pat Buchanan and Martin Anderson.

As a team the enemy hosts see them as the four horsemen of political apocalypse. To those who know Spiro Agnew, it is about as surprising as a complaint by Fulbright, that the vice president should be chosen by Mr. Nixon to get in after the huge labor vote after the AFL - CIO President George Meany said the Democratic Party was in shambles, disintegration and was losing its workers support. Spiro Agnew knows the flora and fauna of American labor. He was a labor lawyer. In the early '60s he represented at least one of Walter Reuther's local unions in Maryland. Also some meatcutters and fishermen. When he needed militant support in one political campaign he called in the municipal workers' leader, Jerry Wurf. He got no place but he knew just whom to call.

And the new Spiro Agnew hasn't forgotten the "old days" just five or six years ago. He could talk to labor's leaders then - as he did on a mission for Nelson Rockefeller at the 1967 national AFL - CIO convention when he drove into Florida for a "four eyes" dialogue with the Seafarers' Paul Hall.

Now the theme's the thing. Mr. Agnew will say in effect - why not the Republican Party? Look at what "we've" done. Look at the new jobless whirlwind.

insurance law, the safety legislation, the halting and slashing of inflation, the President's refusal to clamp down with an unworkable wage-price control system, respect for the working poor, the family assistance program, the food stamps and the drive for an equitable welfare system.

In effect, Spiro Agnew, the 1970 tell-it-like-it-is version of Harry Truman's 1948 give them hell, will say - man, just think of what we could do if the Republican Party had the Congress.

The vice president will be reaching for the national blocs, the ethnic groups, the quiet resentfuls who hate new left extremists because their forbears came from nations jammed behind the Iron Curtain. Some of these are first-generation Americans, having emigrated themselves during the Nazi holocaust.

As in the areas of a hundred cities such as Detroit and Newark, they've put their savings into small homes which once were suburban and now are crowded in by the big city sprawl and all its problems.

Mr. Agnew will reach out for those who resent being called bigots because they object to busing, or because they want to send their youngsters to schools and their own selection for what it's worth to them in lessened heartaches. They may be wrong but their children are 8 and 10 and 12 years old and they want them near home in this crime-infested sometimes ghoulish day.

They resent being patronized by university students from well-to-do families who disdainfully call them hard hats and blockheads and bourgeoisie middle class while they struggle financially to keep their own sons and daughters on the campuses.

Mr. Agnew knows of the "forgotten man's" resentment against paying heavy taxes for a proliferation of social and welfare programs costing billions of dollars. And the vice president will remind them of all this - again and again after his keynote speech in Springfield, Ill., where the Lincoln man will not be lost in the shuffle of speech texts.

But no one should take for granted that the hard hats will drop into the Republican's lap by the hundreds of thousands. Such leaders of the AFL - CIO Building and Construction Trades Dept. as Peter Schoemmer of the plumbers and Maurice Hutcheson have been saying, in effect, "... we must guard against another danger, allowing our patriotic love for country to be misinterpreted as a blank endorsement of all public officials whom we support on foreign policy. There is a difference. It would be a mistake on the part of the national administration to take us for granted."

They're not being taken for granted. The White House hopes to reap them out of Mr. Agnew's whirlwind.

Mom, 35, Attracted to Friend of Son, Just 16 Years Old, What to Do?

Dear Ann Landers: Here it is in a nutshell: I was married at 15 and had a son one year later. The following year I had another son and two years later, a third. After ten years of a stormy marriage my husband left me, I was determined to raise my boys to be good citizens.

For some unknown reason the women in my family do not show their age. My mother is 69 and could easily pass for 48. Although I am 35 I still get asked for my I.D. card when I order a cocktail.

Several of my son's friends have had crushes on me. I've always laughed about it until a few months ago when a certain 16-year-old started hanging around the house, writing poetry about me and playing my favorite songs on his guitar. I am ashamed to tell you how much I enjoy this. Ann, I've been dreaming about this kid for a week straight. The next morning I feel so guilty, I can't look at myself in the mirror.

I have plenty of friends my own age and do not lack for male companionship. My special beau is a police officer in the juvenile division who has been a tremendous influence in helping me raise my boys.

Do you think I need to see a psychiatrist? If I follow my desires, I hate to think where they will lead me. What should I tell myself to keep me on the straight and narrow - which I know I must do at all cost. -- R.J. of L.A.

Dear R.J.: If you really want to solve this problem, Mrs. Robinson, don't talk to yourself - say something to the kid. Like, "Flake off, Buddy Boy, I'm old enough to be your mother."

Dear Ann Landers: This might be the most unusual letter you have received in a long while. You frequently call on physicians for help. This time a physician is calling on you. Please tell me what to do about a 24-year-old daughter who is divorced, has two children and plenty of money from her ex-husband. The girl will not use the good brains God gave her. She runs around with a bunch of crazy kids (most of them younger than herself), drinks beer with vodka chasers, smokes about three packs of cigarettes a day, is dangerously overweight and eats everything she shouldn't. She has high blood pressure and a peptic ulcer but refuses to take the medication I have prescribed for her.

If this girl were not my daughter I wouldn't bother with her for five minutes. I hate to turn my back on her, but the situation is going from bad to worse. She has seen two psychiatrists and didn't get along with either of them. I am drained dry, talked out and disgusted and fed up. What do you suggest? --Denver Doldrums

Aloha Burgers

1 9-ounce can pineapple slices

1 pound ground beef

1 teaspoon salt

Dash pepper

1 recipe Island Sauce

Drain pineapple, reserving 2 tablespoons syrup for sauce. Season meat with salt and pepper. Press a scant tablespoon of meat into center of each pineapple slice, overlapping meat on both sides of slice so meat won't fall out while cooking. Shape remaining meat in 4 patties, slightly larger in diameter than the pineapple; broil burgers on grill over hot coals 12 to 15 minutes, turning once.

Broil meat-filled pineapple slices, turning carefully and brushing with Island Sauce till meat is done and pineapple glazed. To assemble, place each burger atop a bun half or slice of toast. Top with pineapple burger. Peg with a kabob of cherry tomato and green olive.

Island Sauce: Mix reserved pineapple syrup, 1/2 cup catsup, 1/4 cup brown sugar, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, and a few drops liquid smoke; heat to boiling.

Mountain Burgers

1 pound ground beef

1/4 cup quick-cooking rolled oats

2 tablespoons catsup

2 tablespoons milk

1 tablespoon prepared mustard

1 slightly beaten egg

1 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate

1/4 teaspoon liquid smoke

4 thin onion slices

1/4 cup drained pickle relish

1 recipe 1-2-3 Cheese Sauce

Thoroughly combine meat, rolled oats, catsup, milk mustard, egg, and seasonings; shape in 4 burgers. Grill over hot coals about 8 minutes; turn; top each with an onion slice and a mound of pickle relish; cook 7 minutes more or till done. Place on toasted buns; top with Cheese Sauce.

1-2-3 Cheese Sauce: In saucepan, mix 1/3 cup process cheese spread, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, and 1 tablespoon prepared mustard; heat at side of grill.

Circle Pups

1 1-pound can (2 cups) sauerkraut

1 tablespoon flour

1 teaspoon sage

1 pound (8 to 10) frankfurters*

8 to 10 slices rye bread, buttered

Prepared mustard

Drain kraut, reserving 1/4 cup juice. Mix flour, sage, and reserved juice; stir into the drained kraut. Heat and stir till mixture thickens. At 1/2-inch intervals, cut slits across franks, going almost but not quite through. Broil franks over hot coals until hot through--they'll curl as they cook. Place franks on bread; fill center with hot

Stereo Tapes Top Items for Thieves

CARUTHERSVILLE — The stereo tape and tape player has become one of the hottest, if not the hottest, items on the local juvenile delinquent's list. The Caruthersville police department has received a number of reports from local residents who have had stereo tapes stolen from their automobiles. "We are trying hard to stop this," said Chief E. R. "Doc" Stone.

About 170 tapes have been stolen in Caruthersville over the last few months. This does not include tape holders and tape players.

Some of those who have lost tapes are: Jack Tipton, Dr. Alan Gubin, Betty Fields, Hansel Morgan, Bobby Russom, Ray Treece, Vickie Townsend, Joe Darnell, Marvin Waldrop, Frank Anderson, Bubba Hensen, and Suzie Taylor. "We have received reports from these people concerning tapes and other items they have had stolen from their cars, but we feel there are others who have not reported thefts, however," said Chief Stone.

Some of the people mentioned above have had their tapes returned, or at least a part of the stolen items. Others have not.

Those local residents who lost more than one item are: Hansel Morgan, 36 tapes; Ray Treece, 28 tapes; Vickie Townsend, 20 tapes.

"Many of these thefts have occurred in the daytime. People should always remember to lock their cars. Although this may not stop the burglary, it will help," continued Chief Stone.

It was reported by police that Tipton's car was locked and some boys were seen unlocking the car and getting the tapes. The boys locked the car and dropped the tapes when they saw police coming.

Last week a local resident watched three Negro boys hide a box under an empty house between 8th and 9th Streets on Walker Avenue. Upon investigation, police found 14 tapes which were identified as the ones taken out of Vickie Townsend's car.

After further investigation, seven boys were arrested and confessed to getting tapes out of several local cars. "We turned these boys over to juvenile authorities," said Chief Stone.

Stereo tapes and equipment are very expensive. The lowest discount priced tape at Magic Mart is $5.97. The store also sells tapes which could cost up to $10.00 each.

Major Schoenbrun, manager of Magic Mart, said the store would sell approximately 450 tapes monthly.

Tapes are sold at various Caruthersville businesses. A spokesman for A & B Television on Ward Avenue stated that the store would probably sell 300 tapes per month. It was also reported that two expensive tape players were stolen from A & B earlier this year.

Considering Magic Mart's $5.97 per tape, about $1,100 in tapes have been stolen in Caruthersville over the last few months. Many of those who have had stereo tapes stolen have paid much more than $5.97 each for them, however, which would bring the figure much higher.

Chief Stone also reported that many tapes have been stolen from cars while the owner was in the theater. "Tapes should not be left out in the open. Try to hide them or put them in the trunk," he urges.

There have also been a number of stereo tape players stolen from cars in Caruthersville. Many have been recovered. Stereo players are very expensive. Prices start around $50, and go as high as $100, $150, and up.

Stone also pointed out that those who are stealing the tapes have to have an outlet for them. "We want to urge everyone not to buy a 'cheap' tape unless they know exactly who it belongs to and that it has not been stolen.

Compare Crime on Streets, Crime on Screen

LONDON — "How many people dropped dead in your home last week?" asks one British columnist. "Too many," is presumed to be the subliminal response. The possibility of a link between crime on the home screen and crime in the streets is causing increasing concern in Britain as well as in the U.S. The militant believe that the viewers get accustomed to the sight of brutality as a part of daily life and inevitably imitate what they have seen on TV.

In September the survey research center at the London School of Economics will start one of the largest and most comprehensive searches into the relationship between television violence and the behavior of adolescents. The study, partially financed by a grant of $185,000 from CBS, will take about three years and will involve 2,000 interviews with London boys in the 12-17 age bracket.

James D. Halloran, Director of the Center for Mass Communication Research at the University of Leicester, suggests that television provides a convenient scapegoat. To begin with, the word "violence" has built in cultural prejudices and is applied to a vast spectrum of human behavior. Halloran argues that TV violence should not always be regarded as a totally negative phenomenon. "In certain instances, violence may be seen as a form of communication, perhaps as a danger signal," he says.

Shocked by reports of TV violence, the London Times conducted a one-week study earlier this year and counted 71 deaths committed before the eyes of millions. A single program, The Killers, featured a blind woman assaulted, five murders by shooting, a man punched in the face and the stomach, a woman slapped twice and a man hit over the head with a gun before being thrown from a moving car.

ITV (the commercial network in England) has a Code of Violence which makes a series of fine distinctions between what can be shown early and late in the evening. The Code states that violence should "never be allowed for its own sake," and that the degree of violence must always be guided by the dramatic context in which it occurs. The BBC prefers police series where Scotland Yard always triumphs in the end.

By way of excuse, a TV director told Editorial Research Reports that on-screen violence does not hurt very much. A razor slash never draws blood. Nazis stabbed in the back never show pain. Gunshot wounds are heard, not shown. Violence is usually no emotional involvement with the victim.

The television research committee, appointed in 1963, made an attempt to establish on a scientific basis whether any conclusions could be made linking TV to juvenile crime. In this study of 334 adolescent on probation, the sociologists concluded that at most TV "may play a contributory role, and that a minor one."

British sociologists warn that the danger to the child's mind may not be the emphasis on violence or sex but the banality of the total message presented.

4-H in Focus . . . Unite!

"But I can't be in 4-H Club, I don't live on a farm." Oh, yes, you can! 4-H is for urban young people as well as those who live on farms.

"What can I do? I don't have a yard large enough for a garden, or to raise an animal." You can take care of the yard - learning about shrubbery, grasses, flowers, mowing and trimming - or you can also learn to care for your mower in the Small Motors project. Do you have a pet? Taking proper care of the pet can be a 4-H project. "I'll soon be learning to drive and I'm interested in cars." Then the Automotive project is for you. You'll want to know how your car engine works, how to make repairs. At your age you could help out around the house by knowing how to make minor electrical repairs - wire lamps, for instance - so you might p.m., at the Presbyterian Church. Have your parents to consider the Electric project. "I thought girls learned to sew come, too, so they can know and cook in 4-H." They do. But they can also learn how to decorate their rooms, good grooming techniques, and how to care for a young child.

"My little sister is nine and all she wants to do is twirl a baton." Fine! Twirling can be a 4-H project. She will keep records of her lessons, practice time, and can demonstrate her skill for the entire club.

"All this sounds like it will take too much time. I belong to a club already." The time required is six project meetings per year-approximately 1 1/2 to 2 hrs. each. You will work on your project at home in the time you decide to give to the project. There is a monthly meeting for all 4-H members so you can become friends and know what other 4-Hers are doing. You learn parliamentary procedure by being part of the business meeting and learn about Missouri as the club theme "Show-Me Missouri" says.

"Do I have to come to the monthly meeting?" To be a member in good standing-which qualified you to enter competition with other clubs

The average 14-year age child in England will have watched more than 14,000 hours of TV by the time he reaches adolescence. And much of the message will have suggested that life is cheap, full of greed and base passions.

Dr. William Belson, director of the new study at the London School of Economics, does not expect that his investigation will result in any definitive conclusions. Just as the presidential commission to investigate the effects of pornography on American society surprised legislators by asserting that ~~smut does not~~ necessarily cause sex crimes, so crusading citizens may be shocked to find that TV crime may not be responsible for an increase in juvenile delinquency.

Charlton Heston and John Phillip Law, father and son without being a team, in THE HAWAIIANS at the Malone Theatre

THE HAWAIIANS opened Wednesday at the Malone Theatre, downtown, and star, Charlton Heston, Geraldine Chaplin and Tina Chen in a blend of Caucasian, royal Hawaiian and pure Chinese all on the Islands.

THE HAWAIIANS moves slowly ... beautiful scenery ... good acting from Miss Chaplin, Miss Chen and John Phillip Law who portrays Charlton Heston's grown son. Heston's acting is not great but doesn't need to be for him to draw viewers.

RIDER ON THE RAIN opens with a casual scene, a young woman running errands in the rain, and progresses to a forced rape scene and ends 'happily ever after.'

Charles Bronson is the only 'name' American actor in the film. The balance of the cast is French, and the film was made in France.

Thrilling, full of suspense ... the actress lead killed the rapist and rolled him down an embankment into the sea ... Charles Bronson comes along and tries to find the dead man by interrogating the murderer. Her husband, a commercial pilot, keeps going away without listening to her, and her mother is not a trusted confidant.

MUMBO JUMBO

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Taking time off from a campaign against miniskirted churchgoers, a local Anglican rector dismissed the theory of evolution as "mere mumbo jumbo."

Writing in his parish magazine, the Rev. Arthur Sexby of St. Michael and St. George's Church criticized "doctors, bishops, clergymen, lecturers and schoolteachers" who are "more concerned to be with-it than to witness the scientific facts. They are but a lot of intellectual chisellers."

Recently, Sexby caused an uproar in his congregation when he banned miniskirts from the church.

Fearless Forecasts'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP) Where, oh where, have the breathers gone? Not for the big-time football schools—for the forecasters.

Things have reached a fine state when a fearless forecaster, still keeping one eye on the baseball scene, is faced with an early opening of the college football scene that lists such stand-out attractions as Stanford-Arkansas, Southern California-Alabama, etc.

The first major game is set for Friday night in St. Louis between Baylor, winless in 10 games a year ago and doormats of the Southwest Conference, and Missouri, defending co-champions of the Big Eight. Saturday, Sept. 12, lists almost 40 more major games. Sept. 12? Where have you gone, Joe DiMaggio?

Missouri was rated 11th in The Associated Press preseason poll and 11 other ranking teams — there was a three-way tie for 20th — will be in action Saturday. Top-ranked Ohio State takes things easy until Sept. 26 while No. 2 Texas, the 1969 national champs, kicks off its season Sept. 19.

Stanford vs. Arkansas at Little Rock — This is the first national TV game of the season and matches two super quarterbacks in Stanford's Jim Plunkett and Arkansas' Bill Montgomery. Plunkett is rated the equal of No. 1 pro draft pick Terry Bradshaw as a passer and they don't come any more poised than Montgomery.

Both QBs have good supporting casts — tight end Bob Moore, center John Sande and defensive tackle Dan Tipton of Stanford; split end Chuck Dieus, tailback Bill Burnett and defensive end Bruce James of Arkansas.

In the preseason poll, Montgomery's Razorbacks were fourth, Plunkett's Indians 10th. Coach Frank Broyles jokes that he put Stanford on the schedule as Arkansas' 11th game so his players wouldn't look ahead to Texas. A flip of the coin discloses that Rick Kersey, Arkansas' fine defensive lineman, is hurt and the pick is... Stanford.

Southern California vs. Alabama at Birmingham — The third-ranked Trojans are bidding for a fifth consecutive trip to the Rose Bowl while 'Bama is trying to bounce back from a miserable — for them — 6-5 season. Look for USC's rugged defense to harass Alabama quarterback Scott Hunter just enough for the winner to be... Southern Cal. Wake Forest at Nebraska — devaney's Cornhusker two good quarterbacks and look solid everywhere. With room to spare... Nebraska.

Baylor vs. Missouri at St. Louis — 'Nuff said... Missouri — Utah State at Kansas State — The Aggies have no Phil Olsen to chase strong-armed Lynn Dirkey of... Kansas State.

Duke vs. Florida at Jacksonville — Another aerial battle is on tap between Duke's Leo Hart-Wes Chesnon duo and Florida's John Reaves-Carlos Alvarez.

Southeast, Northeast Pick of MIAA Conference

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association football race will begin Saturday at 7:30 p.m. with Central Missouri State being host to Western Illinois University in a non-conference engagement. And only the very brave are inclined to hazard a guess as to the probable outcome of the 1970 season.

The 1969 race ended in a tie between Southeast Missouri State and Northeast and every report this fall indicates that the Indians of Tom Thrower and the Bulldogs of Russ Sloan will be in the thick of the struggle again.

Southeast had the best overall record, 8-2, followed by University of Missouri-Rolla 7-2, Northeast 6-2-1, Lincoln 5-3-1, Central Missouri 5-4, Northwest 3-6 and Southeast Missouri State 0-10.

Lincoln's record was achieved as an independent. Dwight Reed's Tigers enter the conference as a full-fledged member with some untested quality. That includes their sophomore tackles, 6 foot 3 Ron Franks, who weighs 280, and 6-2 Varry Franklin, who goes 240.

Lincoln graduated the great Lamar Parrish, but Jeff Mason, whose 5.0 yards a carry topped the Tigers, will be back. So will tight end Cabe Coleman and split ends Joe Berryman and Earl Coachman.

In the interior line Reed will lean on center James Perine and guard Larry Wooden, both seniors. Safety Larry Shears also is a LU senior. Linebacker William Cox, a freshman who is 6-3 and weighs 240, comes highly recommended.

Thirty-three players who received All-Star recognition of some sort after the 1969 season will return to the other six conference schools which means the wealth of experience will be fairly well distributed.

Al Holmes of Cape, the leading conference rusher, with 952 yards in 147 carries for a 6.5 average, will be back for his senior year. So will Steve McCluskey of Maryville who netted 660 yards in 119 rushes, good for a third-place average of 5.5.

Bob Berry, Rolla's senior fullback, seventh among the rushers with a 4.1 average, returns to Deway Allgood's offense. Don Cummings of Northeast and Steve Eckinger of Central Missouri who tied for first-team quarterback, will return as will Northwest's Steve Schottel, coach Ivan Schottel's son, who received honorable mention at quarterback.

Dogs Crippled

Today the Sikeston high school Bulldogs closed out their final preseason practice, and moved within 24 hours of the season's opener scheduled for Mayfield, Ky. After weeks of hot, dusty, and hopeful practice, the Bulldogs seem eager and ready for the tough Friday night opener against the already tested Mayfield Cardinals.

The Bulldogs will be sending 36 players into the Kentucky stadium Friday night, with only four of the players making the trip returning as starters from last year's team. Linemen Bo Ralph (203 pounds) and Mark Adams (145 pounds) will be anchoring the front wall from the Bulldogs. Senior backs David Evans and David Matthews will return as starters from last year.

Injuries have plagued the Bulldogs early in the season as two backs, not including senior running back Mike Shaffer who has been out the entire season due to knee surgery, will miss the opening game due to injuries received in practice. Starters on both the offensive and defensive squads, David Evans and Billy Brannum will be along the side line with knee and back injuries.

the New York Mets given an opportunity to pass Pittsburgh, games between Red Schoendienst and first place in twinnight with Philadelphia for the nervous National League a share of the lead. And the East. But the St. Louis skipper third-place Chicago Cubs still can talk about taking it all remained one game back after a ... as long as the front-runners 3-2 loss to last-place Montreal.

Since Aug. 2, when the Pirates seized the lead, they have pennant. Schoendienst proclaimed, with a straight face, The Mets are 19-19, the Cubs 20-17 after his Cardinals knocked off the plodding Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 Wednesday night.

The Pirates' third straight setback cost them undisputed possession of the top spot for the first time in 5 1/2 weeks. But contention, they surely will have something to say about who wins the elusive half-pennant. They play the Pirates again tonight, then meet the Mets and Cubs three times each in the following seven days.

In Wednesday's other NL action, Cincinnati downed Los Angeles 6-0; Atlanta split a doubleheader with San Diego, winning 6-3 in 11 innings, then losing 7-4, and San Francisco topped Houston 9-5.

In the American League, Baltimore nipped the New York Yankees 1-0; Boston trimmed Detroit 4-1; Washington edged Cleveland 5-4; the Chicago White Sox swept a pair from California 11-4 and 3-1 and Minnesota beat Oakland 3-1 in the opener of a scheduled twin bill. The Twins-A's nightcap was rained out, along with the Milwaukee-Kansas City single game.

The Cardinals erased a 4-0 Pittsburgh lead with three-run rallies in the fifth and sixth innings. Ted Simmons' two-run double keyed the first uprising and ex-Pirate Carl Taylor pinch hit a run-scoring bloop double in the middle of the second burst, enabling left-hander Frank Bernabe to pick up his first victory of the year.

Willie Montanez, just recalled from the minors, stroked a run-scoring pinch single in the ninth to send the Phillies past the Mets in their opener. But southpaw Ray Sadecki earned the home club a split by taming the Phils on four hits and striking out 12 in the nightcap, Duffy Dyer providing the margin of victory with a bases-loaded single in the sixth.

Light-hitting Bobby Wine beat the Cubs with a two-out, run-scoring single in the ninth and also contributed a pair of defensive gems at shortstop. "You don't mind getting beat 15-1," grumbled Cubs' pilot Leo Durocher, "but not like this. With the pennant race at this stage, you ought to beat the teams you think you should."

Rookie Milt Wilcox fired a five-hitter for the Reds, whose magic number dwindled to seven enroute to clinching the NL West title. Lee May drove in two runs with a double and his 30th homer.

Bob Tillman's leadoff homer in the 11th triggered a three-run Atlanta flurry in the opener at San Diego, but the Padres rebounded behind Earl Wilson, who hurled four shutout innings of relief for his first NL victory and rapped his 35th career homer—two short of Wes Ferrell's record for pitchers.

Willie Mays slammed his 25th and 35th homers, good for five RBIs, to carry the Giants past Houston.

McLain Suspended For Remainder of Season

NEW YORK (AP) — Only two years ago, Denny McLain had the world in his hands. He was baseball's brightest star. He had fame, wealth and talent, and a future that promised only more of the same.

Today, Denny McLain is sitting disconsolately somewhere, probably with only his head in his hands. His star has fallen.

In six short months, he has turned into baseball's bad boy. He is criticized, he is broke and his future is riddled with doubt.

It all came to a climax Wednesday afternoon when baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn suspended the Detroit pitcher for at least the remainder of the 1970 season.

It was McLain's third suspension this year, and the words "at least" give some cause to think that this one might extend even longer than the 1970 season.

All Kuhn would say in announcing the suspension after a meeting with McLain and Detroit officials was that it was "pending further proceedings, which by agreement of counsel will not take place before the end of the season."

McLain slipped away without comment, and Kuhn requested Detroit officials not to talk about the suspension.

Kuhn did say, in his statement, that "certain new allegations have been brought to my attention, including allegations regarding McLain's conduct with respect to the Detroit management and information that on occasions McLain has carried a gun."

It represented the final blow to the 26-year-old right-hander, who, in 1968, became the first pitcher since 1934 to win 30 games in one season. He became the toast of baseball, the Cy Young Award winner.

Last year, he was almost as good, winning 24 games and sharing the Cy Young Award with Mike Cuellar as the American League's top pitcher. But then the bottom fell out when he was implicated with gamblers and suspended in the

Stram Looks For Repeat

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Chiefs won all six games. Livingston completed 84 of 161 passes for 52.2 and 1,123 yards and six touchdowns.

Mike Garrett, seeking to make what he calls his last year in pro football his greatest, and Robert Holmes, nicknamed "The Tank," will be at the 44.4-yard average in 1969, will do the punting. Jan Stenerud, the transplanted Norwegian whose 16 successive field goals last year broke Lou Groza's 16-year-old record, is the placekicker.

Stram, an innovative genius, doesn't expect to unfold a vastly different formation or series of plays this season.

Still, Stram and the Chiefs have their eyes focused on another world crown and, to a man, they believe they will win it when the next Super Bowl is played Jan. 17 in Miami, Fla.

Stram speaks with complete confidence about his team and points with particular pride to the Chiefs' defense, a grandiose collection of talent. He can start the same 11 rugged players who started every game on defense in 1969. That defense led the old American Football League last year in 18 of 26 categories and held Minnesota's high-scoring Vikings to a feeble seven points in Kansas City's 23-7 Super Bowl victory.

Kansas City's famous front four of ends Jerry Mays and Aaron Brown and tackles Curley Culp and Buck Buchanan are back up there again this season ready to harass the opposition. The linebackers, as usual, are Bobby Bell, Willie Lanier and Jim Lynch. Jim Marsalis and Emmitt Thomas are the cornerbacks and Jim Kearney and Johnny Robinson at safety.

The Chiefs' first offensive unit, likewise, will be a carbon copy of the one which led the AFL in rushing a year ago. Len Dawson, regarded by Stram as "the most accurate passer in pro football," will be the quarterback. He has fully recovered from the right knee injury which kept him sidelined for six games last year.

Dawson completed 59 per cent of his passes in 1969, hitting on 98-of-166 tosses for 1,323 yards and nine touchdowns. Mike Livingston is the No. 2 quarterback. He filled in while Dawson was injured and the who are certain to see much action. Among them are running backs Warren McVea, Ed Podolak, Wendell Hayes and Curtis McCClinton, wide receiver Gloster Richardson and rookie Clyde Werner at linebacker. Jerrel Wilson, fresh from his 44.4-yard average in 1969, will do the punting. Jan Stenerud, the transplanted Norwegian whose 16 successive field goals last year broke Lou Groza's 16-year-old record, is the placekicker.

Baughman asked about non credit courses for adults. Dr. Reuter said he expected many courses would be offered for interested persons, and added this would be a fringe benefit for teachers who desire to earn more money.

"In too many communities those students who are college orientated are the only ones considered," Timmons said, "but this program reflect the need to help people with all types of aptitudes. The trend of modern education is thus toward providing for the needs of all."

Howard noted there are many deprived people in the district, and asked if this factor entered into the planning of the facility. Maschmeyer cited a statement by the Missouri State District Reorganization Commission, that the board carefully considered, "Each district should include a diverse population, based on economic, racial and ethnic characteristics."

Timmons said current vocational courses would remain as a basic program, and students will have greater opportunities in the future.

Dr. Reuter, in answering a question if a student could take courses at both the trade school and the high school, said it would be possible, but most students would stay all day at the trade school because of distance and transportation.

With the aid of a counselor, students could plan a schedule so they could finish all required courses in high school and then go the last year or half year to trade school and take electives.

Trade school students will be able to qualify for a high school diploma based on work in the academic and vocational fields. The diploma will entitle a graduate to enter any state college in Missouri.

Aptitude tests will be given to screen or evaluate students for the trade school, Reuter said, also, the decision will be based on counselor recommendations and student interest.

Baughman asked what percent of the operational cost will the state assume? One-half of the salaries of teachers will be paid by the state and the students are eligible for free transportation for which the district will receive funds.

A single salary schedule for faculty employment will be maintained as nearly as possible, Dr. Reuter said supply and demand of teachers will be an issue, and said that some trade teachers must work additional hours to satisfy credit requirements.

Guidance counselors, Timmons said, would be important in the program. He said this is one reason for additional counselors this year in the district, noting it takes time for counselors to be most effective.

While no provision for spectator type sports is being made at the center, Dr. Reuter said the gymnasium at the nearby Howardville school which isn't used much could fill that purpose.

In summarizing justification for the suggested vocational-technical program, Maschmeyer said "I would add that a study the administration made shows that between 40 per cent and 50 per cent of the high school students in the district answered a questionnaire expressing an interest in a vocational-technical program. Also, the University of Missouri has a study that shows that seventy per cent of our students do not go on to higher education. Really, expressing it another way, our schools are currently serving the needs of the 30 per cent and neglecting the 70 per cent. A large percentage of the 70 per cent would be greatly helped with a trade program."

The third dialogue will be with persons from the Parma and Matthews units.

Third Body Recovered

WICKLIFFE, Ky. (AP) — The body of Derrin Jones, 5, of Cairo has been discovered in the Mississippi River about a mile downstream from where he disappeared in a Monday boating accident, Kentucky state police said Wednesday.

Derrin was the step-son of Garfield Wills of Cairo who was in the boat with six children when it capsized near the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers.

Derrin's brother, Michael, 7, and sister, Robin, 8, were also drowned in the accident. Their bodies were recovered Monday.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The September payment of state aid for Missouri's schools under the state foundation program will be approximately 32% of the total annual entitlement. Last year, it was about 48%. The reason for this is the low financial status of the state treasury. This will force many schools to the necessity of borrowing money to meet their obligations until more state or local revenue is available. Ours may be one of them, although we think that perhaps we may be able to get by for the time being, by sharply cutting expenditures, or by transferring funds, where this is legally possible. But there is no question but that education in Missouri is in a real bind because the people of the state have not given it the money which is required to operate anything like an adequate program.

In this connection, about 50,000 elementary and high school students in the St. Louis area face the prospect of either no school at all or just a few months of education unless tax levies which have been defeated time and time again are passed within the coming weeks. It is probable that some of them will not be passed.

The defeat of Proposition No. 1, the corporate and $5.60 to be possible by majority areas which were heretofore left vote as opposed to the present $3.75.

The taxpayer would be protected in that these levies would have to be approved each year by majority vote.

Among sponsors of Amendment No. 3 are the Missouri Congress of Parents and Teachers, the Missouri School Board Association and the Missouri State Teachers Association. To a very great extent, the future of education in Missouri is dependent upon the outcome of the November election.

It has been the traditional responsibility of the nation's public schools to teach those areas of knowledge and skills which could best be done in an organized manner and in which professionally trained teachers could do a better job than could be done by the average parent.

This is still the responsibility of the schools. As the sum total of human knowledge doubles and redoubles at a faster rate, this alone has become an awesome assignment. And, in addition during the years, such responsibilities as health, nutrition through the school lunch program, the transportation of children to and from school and the discipline of education to levy up to and control which the home usually seems to willingly abandon to the schools, have voters to approve an additional levy, up to $3.75 by majority vote. This would allow a total of increasing number of subjects or to the home or some other agency. Driver education, for example. Safety, in its varied aspects, even fire arms safety; vocational skills, (and we heartily agree that the public school system can do this better than can any other agency). Name the subject, or responsibility, and some where there is a demand by the public that the schools take it over.

And, now more and more our society has thrust upon the schools the responsibility for solving its social or ethical problems. For instance, in the area of civil rights, integration and related problems, no other institution is given the responsibility which the schools have had to assume. While rightly so, schools should be involved and can likely be an important institution in bringing about hoped for, and justified, equality of opportunity, equal consideration by law, equal economic opportunity, etc., they must have the support of the public which many times is perfectly willing to sit back and let the schools do it and then criticize their efforts. Schools have no choice but to comply with the law. They should defend justice and freedom and equality of human rights for all individuals, as most do. But, they deserve the support of parents and citizens, who sometimes are either unwilling or too apathetic to give even minimal support.

We should either take away the responsibility of the schools for anything except instruction in the fields of knowledge and skills or give them the backing which is required if they are to do a decent job with the many other assignments which they have been asked to take over.

The enrollment is up just about 100 students over the same period last year. The per pupil cost in our schools last year for operation and maintenance of the educational program and services was $599.56. If we were to spend only the same amount per pupil on the increased enrollment, this would, of course, require an additional outlay of $59,956 over last year's budget. But we won't have the additional money. So, the per pupil expenditure for the entire school population will be reduced proportionately as the enrollment comes up.

Our per pupil cost is about $75 below the average expenditure per pupil for all Missouri's schools and about $150 below that of the national average. The reason: that is all the money we have. As education is about like everything else, that is, you get about what you pay for, it isn't hard to figure out the loser—the student. Fortunately, the Board of Education gets a little better return on the tax dollar in terms of quality education than is average. We sincerely believe that our faculty is more effective than is the average. In fact, our results prove this to be true.

Otherwise our kids won't be getting as good a break as they are.

While schools and teachers must be involved in and should try to influence the behavior of students, the way students act is the responsibility of their parents or guardians.

To carry out its function of teaching, a school must operate under certain organizational structure and rules and regulations that pertain to student control or discipline. We believe these should be kept as simple as possible. But, decent behavior is an absolute necessity if all students are to receive the maximum from their educational opportunities. While we will listen to legitimate and properly presented student complaints or suggestions, it is still our responsibility to maintain an educational environment that is reasonable and orderly. We can not escape this responsibility. We do not intend to. Consequently, it is the policy of the Board of Education, the administration and the faculty to operate an educational program, in which those students who wish to learn, can do so without interference from those who are not willing to abide by reasonable behavior which we expect. Unfortunately it will be necessary to dismiss those students whose conduct indicates that they do not observe the code of conduct which is required.

We request and expect the cooperation of all concerned persons: the student, his parents, and the faculty in maintaining an orderly, and hopefully, pleasant and effective school environment.

School Levy Defeats Vex

Urban Officials

ST. LOUIS (AP) — School officials in two large metropolitan districts are pondering their next moves after proposed tax levies for the 1969-70 school year failed to gain necessary two-thirds majorities Tuesday.

Meanwhile, some 57,000 youngsters remain on an unscheduled holiday from school while their elders battle the financial problems.

A proposed levy of $5.53 per $100 of assessed valuation barely failed at St. Charles, where the tally was 5,323 for, and 3,123 against.

At Riverview Gardens, where a proposed levy of $5.43 was badly defeated in April, the issue drew the most votes ever during a school election, 6,144 for, and 3,371 against.

The Riverview Board set Sept. 14 as opening date for classes but said it would be forced to close by Oct. 23 when current funds are depleted if the levy does not pass.

It also set Sept. 24 as the date for another election, this on $5.43 as the rate for two years instead of one.

Spokesmen for St. Charles said the board would not take any action until its regular meeting Thursday night.

The beginning of school has also been delayed in three other metropolitan districts pending outcomes of tax elections.

In Ferguson-Florissant, largest of the five, the president of the district's School Improvement Association Jerome S. Buzzard, charged the school board with "blackmailing" voters into passing a proposed $5.60 levy.

Weather Award To Advance Man

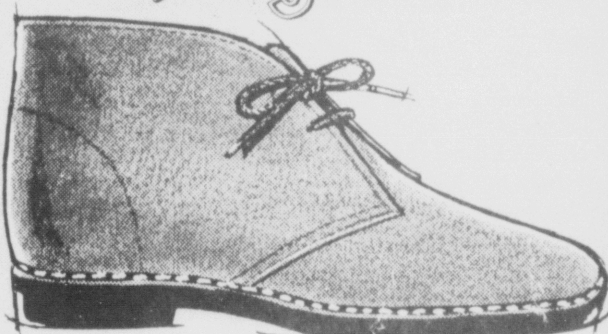

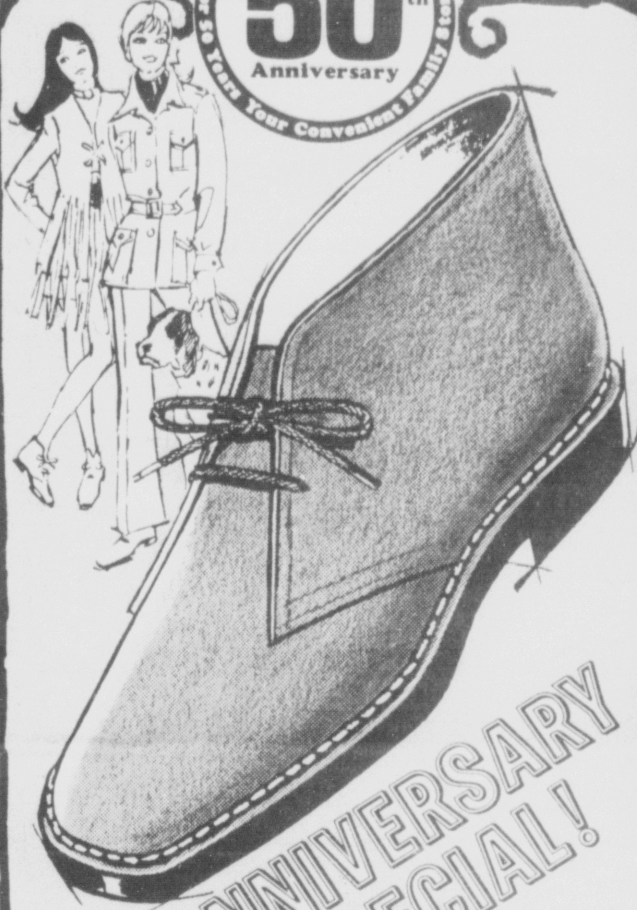

WASHINGTON — Nello Moroni of Advance, Mo., a volunteer weather observer for the Weather Bureau since 1950, is one of 25 volunteer weather observers selected nationwide to receive the John Campanius Holm award, according to the Environmental Science Services Administration of the department of commerce. These awards, created in 1959 by ESSA's weather bureau, are presented annually to honor volunteer observers for outstanding accomplishments in the field of meteorological observations. The award is named for Holm, a Lutheran minister who is the first person known to have taken systematic weather observations in the American colonies. In 1644 and 1645, the Rev. Mr. Holm made records of the climate without the use of instruments near the present site of Wilmington, Del. The award recognized Moroni's service to the bureau and his community in providing accurate weather records at Advance since 1950. Moroni, who owns and operates a large farming complex and flies his own plane, has furnished consistent and accurate weather records of value to the Bollinger county farming community. The Bureau has more than 12,000 volunteer observers throughout the United States who make and record daily weather observations. The information they gather is processed and published by the Environmental Data Service, another ESSA component, and is invaluable in recording the climate of the Nation. Many of these observers, like Moroni, serve without pay.

We Are Never Undersold

CAMBODIAN SOLDIERS taking a stand against Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces driving toward Phnom Penh are digging in outside the capital city. Communist troops advancing along an east-west highway are presenting a serious threat to the capital, but a Cambodian commander is determined "they shall not pass."

MEN ON THE MOON could get around faster with this air-cushion vehicle, according to a proposed concept. The "Lunagem" generates lifting force from gas pressure, raising vehicle about an inch off the ground. It can achieve relatively high speeds and traverse obstacles up to two feet in diameter.

LEAVING CAMBODIA, American tank troops pass a group of South Vietnamese soldiers. The Americans, who were pulled back into Vietnam, had been operating about 10 miles inside the Cambodian border.

OPENING SCENE of 1970 Passion Play at Oberammergau. This year's performance is the 36th in which residents of the German village act out the judgment and crucifixion of Christ. The pageant is enacted every 10 years in fulfillment of a vow made 300 years ago by villagers who escaped the plague.

Under Twenty

Question-Airs

Win a WEBSTER'S NEW WORLD DICTIONARY if you're under twenty. Ask a question of an outstanding personality that will be of interest to ALL "Under Twenties." Write QUESTION-AIRS, c/o The Daily Standard, Dear Question-Air:

Please ask Mr. Harid R. Lewis of the Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C., if lighting has some beneficial effect upon the ground in helping to raise crops? I have heard several times that it is and I wonder how it is. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Janine Gibson
Riverport, Wyoming

(This week's award of a WEBSTER'S NEW WORLD DICTIONARY is being sent to Janine Gibson as well as the original answer from Harold J. Lewis, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.)

manipulate growth processes by controlling the amounts of sunlight or artificial light plants receive and by applying certain growth-regulating chemicals - or a combination of the two. They have made marigold plants grow smaller and sturdier and caused flowering of year-old rhododendrons which otherwise would not flower until they were considerably older.

Plants differ in their needs for light. To bring chrysanthemums into flower during the summer in our northern states, growers must shade the plants to reduce the day length. They are short-day plants. Many others, such as wheat, must have long days and short dark periods to mature.

Use of controlled light can also make plants sturdier and therefore more resistant to diseases. When safflower and sesame plants were grown indoors and kept in a bright light continuously for the first three weeks, they resisted damping off - a fungus-caused condition that attacks both crops.

Eventually, man may be able to tailor crop and ornamental plants to his needs. Some possible results are crops of special heights for better harvesting, flowering of plants at times convenient to man, or better control of plant pests.

Sincerely,
Harold R. Lewis

The Prayer from The Upper Room

"God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and truth." (John 4:24, RSV)

PRAYER: Almighty God, who has revealed Thyself as redemptive love in Christ Jesus, help us to know Thee whom to know aright is life eternal. Amen.

Ford's new 1971 Pinto, a two-door sedan, combines a small-car feel with a sporty-car look. The sloping windshield is accented by the low, sleek lines of the hood and fenders. Ventless side windows add to the trim lines of the car. In the rear, Pinto's short deck and fastback lines stress the contemporary look of the Seventies. The Pinto is about 13½ feet long, turns in a circle of only 31 feet for easy maneuverability and delivers more than 25 miles per gallon in city-suburban driving.

1971 FORD DIVISION CARS-SUMMARY
Ford Division's 46 models in six car lines for 1971 range from the all-new Pinto and hot-selling Maverick in the economy market to the restyled Ford and elegant Thunderbird. And the most completely changed Mustang since this car started its interest of sporty compact buyers.

"1971 stacks up as nothing short of a vintage hardware year in the auto business," says John Naughton, Ford vice president and Ford Division general manager. "Our product line-up not only includes a new entry in a new size for us, but exciting changes in Mustang and Ford as well. This significant investment in new design and engineering changes should add real momentum to recent indications of an upturn in auto sales."

"The action in '71 is bound to be in the small car arena," Mr. Naughton says "and our little Pinto is going to be right in the thick of the donnybrook."

Aisles Must Be Clear for Shoppers

The case of the compulsive shopper
By Jack Strauss, L.L.B.

Agatha's favorite recreation was going shopping. While her husband followed the horses, she followed the sales. Thus engaged at Hoople's Department Store, she beamed into a three-point landing.

While eyeing a fantastic display of hats, she stumbled over a small table that had been left in the aisle and, landing on her knees, she skidded to a halt on her nose.

Out of commission for a number of weeks, Agatha sued Mr. Hoople for her injuries.

"When a person goes shopping," she complained in court, "it's not for a broken nose. Aisles in a department store should be kept clear."

"Had Agatha used her eyes instead of her nose," responded Mr. Hoople, "it would still be intact. The fact that Agatha got hurt was her own fault. She should have been looking where she was walking."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Agatha to collect?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a female customer can be expected to be distracted by a display of hats. Consequently, a merchant displaying such an attraction must anticipate the response it is likely to evoke in a woman shopper and must provide proper safety for her while she is in rapture over the hats.

(Based upon a 1965 United States District Court Decision)

Meet Ford's new Pinto. The little carefree car.

If you have the questions, Pinto has the answers.

Q. What do you mean, "carefree"?
A. Pinto's designed to free you from car cares, big and little. Cares about high prices and big gas bills. Cares about parking. Cares about service and reliability. Power and stability. Quiet and roominess.

Q. You say Pinto is little. How little?
A. Pinto is only 3 inches longer than VW. But its turning circle is actually a little less, so Pinto can slip easily into tight parking spaces.

Q. And inside?
A. Pinto gives you more interior roominess overall than Volkswagen. And getting in and out is easier because Pinto's doors are a good half-foot wider.

Q. What about price?
A. Pinto is priced like the little economy imports, too.

Q. What about power?
A. Pinto delivers 75 horsepower and averages over 25 miles per gallon in simulated city-suburban driving. The engine is front-mounted and exceptionally quiet for a car in this class. Pinto is the only American economy car equipped with a 4-speed, fully synchronized transmission at no extra cost.

Q. What else is standard equipment?
A. High Back bucket seats. Direct-Aire ventilation with upper-level fresh air outlets. Heater defroster with 3-speed fan. Two-speed electric windshield wipers. Electric windshield washers. Your choice of 15 exterior colors. And more.

Q. How about optional extras?
A. Pinto offers a 100-hp engine and 3-speed automatic transmission. Front disc brakes. Even built-in air conditioning. Tinted glass. Vinyl roof. "Flipper" rear quarter windows. Fold-down rear seat. Bumper guards and side molding with vinyl inserts to protect the paint. More than most imports offer—at prices economy-car buyers can afford.

Q. Reliability?
A. Pinto's engine has already logged 50 million owner-driven miles. And the strength of some of Pinto's parts makes ordinary little economy cars look puny by comparison. Parts like the starter motor, ball joints, rear wheel bearings are heavy duty. Craftsmanship? Pinto is the only American car with hand-matched transmission gears.

Q. What's Pinto like out on the road?
A. Pinto has a wider stance than any economy import, for better stability in turns and gusty crosswinds. For more road feel, and more precise handling, Pinto has rack and pinion steering—like Porsche and Jaguar—something you won't find on any other American car.

Q. Tell me about service.
A. Pinto is so simple you can do much of the maintenance yourself, if you like. The Owner's Manual shows you how. And Pinto's free Do-It-Yourself Key helps you perform minor service functions.

Q. Suppose I don't service Pinto myself?
A. You still save when your Ford Dealer does it. For example, Pinto needs an oil change half as often as the leading import. And a chassis lube only one-sixth as often.

Q. Sounds great—where can I test-drive Pinto?
A. Your nearest Ford Dealer. And if you have any more questions, he can answer them.
